

The MISSION of the Pre-Dead Social Club is to cultivate multi-generational communities interested in having compassionate conversations about death, dying and end-of-life, making it a bit easier, less burdensome, and more tenderhearted before a life-limiting or terminal diagnosis arises.

Opportunities to join us!

DEATH-OVER-DRINKS

A FREE monthly, in-person event open to all mortals interested in exploring topics related to death, dying and end-of-life. NO EXPERIENCE NECESSARY! During this facilitated “die-a-logue” participants share stories and various points of view as we all lean into the ice breaker question, allowing us to gain a wider view one topic at a time. We’re all a bit rusty so let’s practice these conversations together.

DEADLINES

A creative obituary / ode writing workshop offered various times throughout the year. Great opportunity for those interested in creating a non-traditional obituary or ode worth reading, worth remembering and worth sharing who might struggle to get the words down on paper. Write your own, one for your dearly departed pet or someone you want to pay homage to, dead or alive!

ROUNDTABLES

Hope to see you May 20th for, “We Wish We Knew That” —Stories + Strategies for Communicating Effectively for Better Care” Attendees will be part of a thought-provoking roundtable discussion between healthcare professionals and caregivers about the roles we all play when it comes to our health and receiving the care we want. The goal...to inspire and activate us to develop more effective strategies when it comes to healthcare conversations regardless of the role we each play in those conversations.

DEATHWINGS

Join us Sept 15th for a small group, wing-making workshop where participants explore what compassionate, hands-on creativity can offer us when we’re navigating loss and grief. Participants will take home a toolkit to use on their own with family and friends, or anyone else you want to share this experience with. The mini-wings you create hold sixty feathers, each representing a memory or intention gathered to honor and navigate “a death”.

Coming Soon!

WRITING SALONS

We are busy scoping out just the right venues that will support tapping into your creative juices when it comes to writing as a way to reflect, process and approach end-of-life, death and grief. For those who appreciate the process of writing over talking (or both!).

WHERE THERE'S A WILL, THERE'S A WAY

In this workshop series, we'll connect with others in our community ON-LINE to start picking away at both the paperwork side of death as well as invite you to explore other areas that provide comfort to each of us when the end is near. This workshop is for planners and non-planners alike!

What would you like to die-a-logue about?
